David Samuel - Bio

David Samuel is a strategy consultant and workshop trainer who works with IT leaders and business-technology teams to increase their performance and their personal differentiation in today's demand-driven economy. David's perspective is drawn from 32 years in corporate leadership roles, and is based on a "just right" blend of solid research and experience-based knowledge.

He's been a Corporate CIO, a Marketing executive, a global industry GM, a management consultant, and a Customer Service executive. He is also a prolific author and recognized thought leader across multiple industries.

As the founder and CEO of Lean Forward & Go!, David delivers powerful training programs for IT leaders and teams that combine winning 21st century business strategies with career development and leadership readiness. The company also delivers strategy advisory services to the CIOs and senior business-technology leaders who are committed to increasing the impact of IT on the broader business enterprise.

David provides emerging IT leaders with real strategies for creating day-to-day value in their roles, as well as fresh insights into accelerated career growth. He leverages his dynamic facilitation style to encourage the full engagement of all participants to achieve the program outcomes.
